

British Government sold Kashmir to Gulab Singh in the year?

British Government sold Kashmir to Gulab Singh in the year?

- A. 1846
- B. 1847
- C. 1849
- D. 1850

Show Answer...

Correct Answer: A (1846)

Explanation:

In 1846, the British government sold the princely state of Jammu and Kashmir to Raja Gulab Singh of Jammu for a sum of 7.5 million rupees. This agreement was signed by the British Governor-General, Lord Henry Hardinge, and Gulab Singh on March 16, 1846. This sale of Kashmir marked the beginning of a new era in the history of the region and paved the way for the Dogra rule in Jammu and Kashmir.

The sale of Kashmir has been a contentious issue and has been a subject of debate between India and Pakistan, both of whom claim sovereignty over the region. The dispute has led to several wars and continues to be a point of contention between the two countries.

State of Jammu and Kashmir

The sale of Kashmir to Raja Gulab Singh of Jammu by the British Government in 1846 marked the beginning of a new era in the history of the region. The agreement was signed by the British Governor-General, Lord Henry Hardinge, and Gulab Singh on March 16, 1846, for a sum of 7.5 million rupees. This sale of Kashmir paved the way for the Dogra rule in Jammu and Kashmir and is considered a crucial moment in the region's history.

However, the sale of Kashmir has been a contentious issue and has been a subject of debate between India and Pakistan, both of whom claim sovereignty over the region. The dispute has led to several wars and continues to be a point of contention between the two countries. Despite numerous attempts at resolving the issue, a permanent solution has not yet been found, and the situation remains tense.

British Government sold Kashmir to Gulab Singh in the year?

In recent years, there have been renewed efforts to resolve the Kashmir dispute, with both India and Pakistan showing a willingness to engage in dialogue. However, it remains to be seen if a lasting solution can be found that satisfies both countries and brings peace to the region.