Complete the sentence: It will rain soon, _____?

A. will it
B. won't it
C. would it
D. wouldn't it

Tag questions are a common feature in English grammar, often used to seek confirmation or agreement. Understanding the appropriate tag to complete a sentence contributes to effective communication.

Answer:

B. won't it

Explanation:

In this sentence, "It will rain soon," the tag question seeks confirmation or agreement. The correct tag to use is "won't it," creating the complete sentence: "It will rain soon, won't it?" This structure is commonly employed in English to engage in conversational exchanges and ensure clarity.

Exploring Tag Questions:

1. Positive Statement, Negative Tag:

When the main statement is positive, as in "It will rain soon," the tag question often takes a negative form, resulting in "won't it?"

2. Negative Statement, Positive Tag:

Conversely, if the main statement is negative, the tag question typically takes a positive form. For example, "It won't rain soon, will it?"

3. Seeking Confirmation:

Tag questions are used to seek confirmation, agreement, or acknowledgement from the listener. They play a crucial role in maintaining effective communication.

MCQ Explanation:

The correct answer is B) won't it. This tag question aligns with the positive statement "It will rain soon" and follows the pattern of using a negative tag.

Importance of Tag Questions:

Effective Communication:

Understanding how to use tag questions enhances one's ability to engage in effective and clear communication. It adds a conversational element to statements, inviting interaction.

Politeness and Clarity:

Tag questions can also convey politeness and a desire for confirmation. They help avoid misunderstandings and ensure that the intended meaning is conveyed.

Conclusion:

In the sentence "It will rain soon, won't it?" the tag question serves as a tool for seeking agreement or confirmation. Mastering the use of tag questions contributes to proficiency in English grammar and facilitates smoother communication.
