

Eid-ul-Fitr Namaz is _____?

- A. Farz
- B. Wajib
- C. Sunnat
- D. Mustahab

Show Answer...

Correct Answer: B (Wajib)

Explanation:

Eid-ul-Fitr Namaz is a special prayer offered by Muslims on the day of Eid-ul-Fitr, which marks the end of the month of Ramadan. This prayer is Wajib, which means it is an obligation or duty for every adult Muslim who is sane, healthy, and not traveling.

The prayer consists of two Rakats and is usually offered in an open space or a large hall. The Eid prayer is led by an Imam and is followed by a Khutbah or sermon, in which the Imam addresses the community and discusses the importance of Eid and the significance of Ramadan.

The Eid-ul-Fitr prayer is a way for Muslims to show gratitude to Allah for the blessings and guidance provided during the month of Ramadan. It is also an opportunity for the community to come together and celebrate the festival with joy and happiness. After the prayer, people greet each other with the traditional Eid greeting of "Eid Mubarak" and exchange gifts and sweets.

In Islamic jurisprudence, there are five categories of actions or practices: Farz, Wajib, Sunnat, Mustahab, and Makruh. Farz and Wajib both refer to actions that are obligatory, but Farz is considered more important and its non-performance results in a sin, whereas Wajib is slightly less important and its non-performance results in a lesser sin. Sunnat and Mustahab refer to actions that are recommended or preferred, and Makruh refers to actions that are disliked.
