

Harlow's experiments with substitute mothers made of wire demonstrated the importance of what aspect of nurturing?

Harlow's experiments with substitute mothers made of wire demonstrated the importance of what aspect of nurturing?

- A. feeding
- B. responsiveness to needs
- C. imprinting
- D. touch