1. Indus River

The Indus River is the longest river in Pakistan, flowing through the length of the country. It is often referred to as the lifeline of Pakistan, as it supports agriculture and provides water for various purposes.

2. Jhelum River

The Jhelum River is another significant watercourse in Pakistan, originating from the Indian-administered territory of Jammu and Kashmir. It joins the Chenab River, contributing to the extensive river system of the region.

3. Chenab River

The Chenab River is one of the major tributaries of the Indus River. It originates in the Himalayas and flows through the Indian-administered region of Jammu and Kashmir before entering Pakistan. The Chenab is vital for irrigation and hydropower generation.

4. Ravi River

The Ravi River is another important tributary of the Indus, originating in the Indian state of Himachal Pradesh. It flows through the Indian-administered region of Jammu and Kashmir before entering Pakistan. The Ravi contributes to the agricultural productivity of the region.

5. Sutlej River

The Sutlej River is the easternmost tributary of the Indus River. It originates in Tibet and flows through the Indian states of Himachal Pradesh and Punjab before entering Pakistan. The Sutlej is essential for irrigation and hydropower projects.

These rivers collectively form a complex network that sustains life in Pakistan. The fertile plains along these rivers support agriculture, making them integral to the country's economy and development.
