Correct Answer: Compound sentence

The sun set, the stars appeared in the sky.

[Which type of sentence it is?]

A. Compound sentence

B. Complex sentence

C. Simple sentence

D. Compound complex

Correct Answer:

The correct answer is Compound sentence.

Step-by-Step Explanation:

1) What is a Compound Sentence?

A compound sentence is made up of two or more independent clauses (simple sentences) joined by a coordinating conjunction, a semicolon, or a comma. Both clauses can stand alone as separate sentences.

In the sentence “The sun set, the stars appeared in the sky,” we have two independent clauses:

- “The sun set” (an independent clause).
- “The stars appeared in the sky” (another independent clause).

These two clauses are connected with a comma, making it a compound sentence.

The sun set, the stars appeared in the sky. [Which type of sentence it is?]

Types of Sentences:

Understanding sentence types is essential in improving grammar and sentence structure. Below are the four types of sentences, along with examples.

1) Simple Sentence:

A simple sentence contains only one independent clause. It expresses a single complete thought.

Example:

“The sun set.”

2) Compound Sentence:

A compound sentence has two or more independent clauses connected by a coordinating conjunction (for, and, nor, but, or, yet, so), a semicolon, or a comma.

Example:

“The sun set, (and) the stars appeared in the sky.”

3) Complex Sentence:

A complex sentence contains one independent clause and at least one dependent clause (a group of words that cannot stand alone).

Example:

“When the sun set, the stars appeared in the sky.”

4) Compound-Complex Sentence:

A compound-complex sentence contains two or more independent clauses and at least one dependent clause.

Example:

“When the sun set, the stars appeared in the sky, and the moon began to rise.”

How to Identify a Compound Sentence:

1) Look for Independent Clauses:

A compound sentence will have two or more independent clauses. Each clause should be able to stand alone as a complete sentence.

The sun set, the stars appeared in the sky. [Which type of sentence it is?]

2) Check the Connector:

Compound sentences are usually connected by:

- Coordinating Conjunctions: for, and, nor, but, or, yet, so (e.g., “The sun set, and the stars appeared”).
- Semicolon: A semicolon can also be used to link two independent clauses (e.g., “The sun set; the stars appeared”).

3) Comma Usage:

When connecting two independent clauses with a coordinating conjunction, always place a comma before the conjunction.

Additional Examples of Compound Sentences:

1) Example 1:

“I went to the store, but it was closed.”

- Two independent clauses: “I went to the store” and “it was closed.”
- Connected by the conjunction but.

2) Example 2:

“She studied for the test, and she passed with flying colors.”

- Two independent clauses: “She studied for the test” and “she passed with flying colors.”
- Connected by the conjunction and.

3) Example 3:

“He didn’t like the movie, yet he watched it till the end.”

- Two independent clauses: “He didn’t like the movie” and “he watched it till the end.”
- Connected by the conjunction yet.

Tips for Writing Compound Sentences:

1) Use Coordinating Conjunctions:

Memorize the FANBOYS acronym to help you recall the coordinating conjunctions (for, and, nor, but, or, yet, so).

2) Vary Your Sentence Structure:

Use a mix of sentence types in your writing to make it more engaging. Compound

The sun set, the stars appeared in the sky. [Which type of sentence it is?]

sentences help combine ideas without breaking them into too many short, choppy sentences.

3) Be Mindful of Commas:

Place a comma before the coordinating conjunction in a compound sentence.

4) Practice Identifying Clauses:

Get into the habit of spotting independent clauses in your writing or reading materials. This will help you better understand sentence structure and improve your writing.

By understanding how compound sentences work and practicing them, you can greatly improve your writing skills and make your content more varied and engaging.
