Vincenzo conducts an experiment to see whether fear makes mice run through mazes faster. He first selected a sample of 60 mice and then divided them into a control group and an experimental group. Which cannot be a confounding variable?

A. How fast the mice are at the start.
B. When the mice run the maze.
C. The population from which he selected his subjects.
D. How frightened the mice are before the experiment