Correct Answer: B (It is better to keep quiet and not reveal the truth, rather than lying.)

Explanation:

The proverb “Ask me no questions, I’ll tell you no lies” means that it is better to keep quiet and not reveal the truth, rather than lying. It is often used to suggest that asking too many questions or prying too much can lead to lies or discomfort. The proverb encourages people to mind their own business and not inquire too deeply into things that may not concern them.

Option A, “It is better to ask questions and uncover the truth, rather than avoiding the truth,” is incorrect because it goes against the message of the proverb, which is to avoid asking questions. Option C, “It is important to always tell the truth, even if it may be uncomfortable,” is also incorrect because the proverb suggests that sometimes it may be better not to reveal the truth. Option D, “It is better to lie than to reveal the truth and potentially cause harm,” is not related to the proverb and is incorrect.

In summary, the proverb “Ask me no questions, I’ll tell you no lies” means that it is better to keep quiet and not reveal the truth, rather than lying, and it suggests that asking too many questions or prying too much can lead to lies or discomfort.
