

What is the total area of Antarctica?

What is the total area of Antarctica?

- A. 12 million square kilometers
- B. 14 million square kilometers
- C. 20 million square kilometers
- D. 24 million square kilometers

Show Answer...

Correct Answer: B (14 million square kilometers)

Explanation:

Antarctica is the southernmost continent on Earth and is the fifth-largest continent in terms of area. The total area of Antarctica is approximately 14 million square kilometers (5.4 million square miles), making it larger than Europe and almost twice the size of Australia. However, despite its large size, Antarctica has no permanent residents and is governed by the Antarctic Treaty System, which sets aside the continent as a scientific preserve.

The other options are not correct. Option A, 12 million square kilometers, is too small. Option C, 20 million square kilometers, and option D, 24 million square kilometers, are too large.

Usage:

Knowledge of the size and geography of Antarctica is important for various fields of study, including geography, climatology, and biology.

Conclusion:

The total area of Antarctica is approximately 14 million square kilometers, making it the fifth-largest continent on Earth. Despite its large size, Antarctica has no permanent residents and is governed by the Antarctic Treaty System as a scientific preserve.
