

Which of the following hypotheses would be most difficult to test experimentally?

Which of the following hypotheses would be most difficult to test experimentally?

- A. Exercise improves mood.
 - B. Exposure to violent television increases aggression.
 - C. Studying leads to better grades.
 - D. Divorce makes children more independent
-