Show Answer...

Correct Answer: Democracy

Why democracy is not a type of ideology?

Democracy is not considered a type of ideology because it is a form of government or political system, rather than a set of beliefs or principles. Ideology refers to a set of beliefs or principles that guide the actions and decisions of an individual or group. These beliefs or principles may be related to various aspects of life, such as economics, politics, social issues, or morality.

Democracy is a political system in which the power to govern is held by the people, either directly or through their elected representatives. While different ideologies may advocate for different forms of democracy or different approaches to governance, democracy itself is not an ideology. It is a system of governance that can be implemented in a variety of political contexts, and can be compatible with a wide range of ideologies.
