Which province launched an app called “Meri Awaz” for women?

A. Sindh

B. Khyber Pakhtunkhwa

C. Punjab

D. Balochistan

Explanation:

The Punjab caretaker government is launching a safety app called “Meri Awaz” for women. This initiative is aimed at providing women with a tool to enhance their safety and well-being. The app is intended to offer features and services that promote women’s security and empowerment in the Punjab province of Pakistan. This app is specifically designed to assist women who may be facing harassment or emergency situations. When women experience harassment or require urgent help, they can receive prompt assistance by simply clicking the button on the “Meri Awaz” safety app. The police will respond quickly through the helpline to address issues related to harassment, torture, and other emergency situations. The safety app, created by the Punjab Information Technology Board, is user-friendly and its primary purpose is to provide a speedy response by the police in a short span of time.

When the button on the safety app “Meri Awaz” is activated, the nearest police will reach the location within minutes. The app also incorporates an automated system for registering complaints and sending relevant data to the nearest police station. The Punjab caretaker Chief Minister, Mohsin Naqvi, emphasized the importance of making the app fully functional and directed efforts to enhance the
